

A note on resources...

'Rhythms of Grace' supplies a diverse selection of resources, which are selected for their specific contributions to a particular page theme. In addition, 'On My Bookshelf' gives a variety of personal book recommendations; books which have greatly added to my faith-journey.

I honour each person represented for blessing me on my faith-journey; however, it is important to say I am not affiliated with any of them, and an endorsement of every aspect of the theology or world-view of a particular ministry is not implied.

Through the blessing of the internet, there is a wealth of Christian resource available to us—and many partisan views are expressed, some of which are horrifyingly judgemental. My encouragement is for us to view it all as a banquet—we don't have to eat everything to have a good meal, nor should we reject the whole thing because there are elements we don't like.

The best of Christendom belongs to us—let's enjoy it!
